Rare and out-of-print journals of a scientific or scholarly nature may be added to your library at reasonable cost through use of the ADI sets of journals project. Microfilm master negatives have been made of journals that are most in demand. These can be added to your collection at unusually low cost. These journals are listed on this sheet.

To facilitate further the enrichment of scientific and scholarly research, the American Documentation Institute will accept orders for the microfilming of runs of journals totaling five or more volumes in any one run, at the special price of 3/4 cents a page, provided such material is available in a cooperating library and with the understanding that such long-run microfilming may be given deferred handling. Shorter runs are available through Bibliofilm Service now operated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

We suggest that you check today your shelves against the microfilm journals listed on this sheet. Several of the journals are available at a considerable reduction from the 3/4 cents per page price.

EXCHANGE OF MICROFILM ORDERS

Report by Ralph R. Shaw, Librarian
United States Department of Agriculture
February 18, 1944

The Committee on Exchange of Microfilm Orders, consisting of Dr. Kenerson, Dr. Leland, and myself, wishes to report that the following libraries have agreed to exchange of microfilm orders, in accordance with the following plan:

Army Medical Library, Washington, D.C.; Brown University Library, Providence, R. I.; Columbia University Libraries, New York, N. Y.; Denver Public Library, Denver, Colo.; Harvard College Library, Cambridge, Mass.; Library of Congress, Washington, D.C.; New York Public Library, New York, N. Y.; The Howard-Tilton Memorial Library, Tulane University of Louisiana, New Orleans, La.; U.S. Department of Agriculture Library, Washington, D.C.; University of Washington Library, Seattle, Wash.; Yale University Library, New Haven, Conn.

This is being done on an experimental basis for the next six months, and copies of the agreement and list of libraries are being sent to each of the cooperating libraries.

Since this scheme of operation will go into effect on March 1, it will run out on September 1, and at that time we should review the results to determine whether retention, expansion, or discontinuance of the program is advisable.

Proposal: Exchange of microfilm orders for periodical articles which cannot be supplied directly by the library from which they were originally ordered.

Method of Operation: Each of the cooperating libraries shall continue to supply all microfilm copies of articles that it would normally supply on orders that it receives. Any order which it cannot supply will be forwarded to any one of the cooperating libraries which can supply it instead of returning it to the person requesting the material, and the cooperating library will supply the film required direct to the customer.

Price: The price charged for copying under this cooperative arrangement shall be 50 cents for any article in one volume of a periodical.

Upon receipt of an order which cannot be filled in one of the cooperating libraries, the cooperating library may either forward the original request to any other of the cooperating libraries which can supply the service or may keep the original order in its file, sending a memorandum to any of the cooperating libraries which can supply the service, indicating the service desired and by whom desired. In either case the forwarding library will notify the person requesting the microfilm that his inquiry has been forwarded to the other library and refund his payment, if any.

REPORT OF WATSON DAVIS, SECRETARY-TREASURER
to the
ADI ANNUAL MEETING, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1951

Auxiliary publication, the ADI technique of demand publication of documents, has had an accelerated utilization during 1950, with increased deposit of documents by journals and increased requests for the documents deposited. During 1950, and so far this year, there were 474 documents accessioned, bringing the total to approximately 2200.

The servicing of scientific journal serials in microfilm has been interrupted, largely because of the loss of time and pace in the change of the photocopying laboratory utilized from the Department of Agriculture Library to the Library of Congress. A new listing and offering is in process.

Financially, there has been a loss of about $2,600.00 in net worth during the year, largely due to lack of income from the servicing of serials in microfilm, the cost of dues to FID and the expenditures necessary to create a negative microfilm of documents satisfactory to the photocopying laboratory cooperating with us.

The present net worth of approximately $3,500 is smaller than it should be, if ADI is to continue to maintain the useful function of auxiliary publication and a general service to the field of scientific and scholarly documentation. There should be an expenditure of about $500 in placing a complete duplicate in microfilm of the auxiliary publication documents in several depositories elsewhere in this country and abroad. We should issue regular additions to our Auxiliary Publication Catalog.

The work of the ADI office has been increased by the handling of subscriptions to American Documentation Quarterly.

It should be understood that there are no full-time ADI employees, no rental costs, etc. If the established and continuing ADI functions are useful, there should be for the future more financial support and assurance.

I have continued thus far personal participation in ADI only because it seems important that the useful functions continue. When an essential change in the conduct of ADI was made a few years ago, there were hopes that funds could be secured for an expansion of our program of value to scientists and scholars.

The participation of the Library of Congress in the work of ADI may well be able to supply the drive and resources that continued progress demands. Equally, the scientific and scholarly agencies that hold the membership power in ADI are in a position to insist that ADI functions serve their needs. There are many needed activities that are not served by libraries and library associations as such.

In my report as president to the annual meeting of 1946, there were listed

ORGANIZATION OF INFORMATION

Documentation in France

In France, the Study Committee „Documentation“, instituted by government decree of 9th December 1959 and headed by Prof. G. A. Boutry, addressed a report of its conclusions and recommendations to the Minister for Scientific Research and Atomic and Space Questions. It has been published by the Secrétariat Général du Gouvernement, Direction de la Documentation, 16 rue Lord-Byron, Paris (8e). Below we give some of its findings.

The Committee had been charged to report on possibilities of concerted action on the national level. As practical contributions towards this goal the Committee drafted a „Code du bon usage en matière de publications scientifiques“, and charged its member Mr. P. Poindron with the compilation of an inventory of French documentation centres, published in 3 volumes in 1963.

Conferences and Seminars in India

A Conference of Information Scientists of Indian CSIR organizations was held in Mysore on 18-21 May 1963. The recommendations of the Conference called for the publication of „Indian Science Abstracts” and the creation of a National Science Library as a base for documentation services.

The first Annual Seminar of the Documentation Research and Training Centre (DRTC) was held in the Centre, Bangalore, from 5 to 10 June 1963. The themes of the four discussion groups were: Coverage studies in documentation periodicals; Arrangement of entries in documentation periodicals; Scatter and seepage of subject among periodicals; and Compilation of anticipatory indexing periodicals. General Rapporteur was Mr. J. Saha, Chief Librarian, Indian Statistical Institute. Papers and proceedings were to be published.

The 5th Conference of IASLIC was held in Poona on 21-24 October 1963. Its two symposia concerned: Document and data processing in academic and university libraries, and Problems and prospects of library associations in India. Chief organizing secretary was Mr. K. S. Hingwe, University of Poona.

CONFERENCES

Seminar on UDC and mechanization, 20 September 1966

Some fifty participants attended the two sessions of this all-day seminar organized by the CCC's subcommittee on Mechanization at the beginning of the FID Conference week.

"Use of computers for maintenance and presentation of classification schedules and thesauri" was the theme of the morning session under the chairmanship of Prof. A. L. C. Vicentini (Brazil): papers were presented by Mr. Robert Freeman, Manager of the AIP-UDC project (American Institute of Physics) in the Center for Applied Linguistics, Washington, who described progress in the computer-taping of English UDC schedules (cf. this Bulletin, vol. 16, 1966, No. 5, p. 49); by Mr. Malcolm Rigby (ESSA, Washington), doyen of UDC mechanization work; and by Mr. Dan Fink (Danish Building Documentation Centre, Copenhagen) on the expanded ABC for the IBCC.

The theme of the afternoon session, with Mr. Rigby presiding, was the "Application of computers to indexing, selection and retrieval by UDC". In addition to Mr. Rigby himself, who spoke on investigations in his own field of meteorology and associated sciences, there were two papers: by Mr. Tom Cales (American Geological Institute, Washington), who described the VESIAC project for machine indexing and retrieval of seismology literature by UDC; the other by Dr. Fritz Model (Deutsches Hydrologisches Institut, Hamburg), who described the system he had developed in his institute.

In the short time available at the morning and afternoon sessions there was a lively discussion with contributions from Dr. Coblans (Aslib, UK) and others. Reports of other experiences were also available, notably from Mr. Boomsma (IBM, Uithoorn, Netherlands). Unfortunately, the practical demonstration of a UDC tape run at the IBM Data Centre (Rijswijk, The Hague) was not the success hoped for, but the general feeling was that it would certainly be well worth holding similar seminars at future FID Conferences.

6th Annual Meeting of ICIREPAT

The 6th Annual Meeting of the Committee for International Co-operation in Information Retrieval among Examining Patent Offices (ICIREPAT) was held in The Hague from 10 to 20 October 1966. The meeting was attended by members from 14 countries (Austria, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Israel, Japan, Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, UK, USA and USSR), representatives from BIRPI, Council of Europe, Euratom, FID (Dr. F. A. Sviridov) and IIB and a number of observers.

The programme included business meeting and technical sessions on such subjects as information retrieval mechanization, classification and indexing systems, interchange of patent documentation, exchange of punched tapes, mechanized patent search systems, automatic translation.

The Steering Committee of ICIREPAT is composed of Mr. L. F. W. Knight (UK), Chairman; Mr. R. A. Spencer (USA), Vice-Chairman; Mr. Harold Pfeffer (USA), General Secretary; and Messrs W. E. A. Axhausen (Germany), T. Gustafson (Sweden) and G. J. Koelewijn (Netherlands), members.

Particular problems, such as analyzing, co-operation, procedures and layout, and mechanical translation are studied by Standing Committees.

The address of the General Secretary is: Office of Research, Development and Analysis, US Patent Office, Washington, D.C. 20231. The Secretariat issues a "Bulletin" and "Proceedings" of meetings.

Deutsche Gesellschaft für Dokumentation held 18th Annual Meeting

The 18. Jahrestagung der Deutschen Gesellschaft für Dokumentation (DGD), which took place in Neustadt an der Weinstrasse from 25 to 28 October 1966, was attended by more than 350 participants including some 30 from eight foreign countries, and the Secretary General and Administrative Director of FID.

After the Opening by the President, Prof. Dr. H. Arntz, lectures were given by Dr. F. A. Sviridov (FID) on the activities of VINITI, by Prof. Dr. H. Teichmann (Chairman of the DGD Committee on Electrical engineering) on the principles of cybernetics in relation to documentation. These were followed by lectures on documentation in chemistry and social sciences.

The morning of the second day was devoted to a forum discussion on a national policy for documentation and information in science and technology. Guidelines for such a policy, prepared by Dr. H. Lechmann, Referent for scientific documentation and information and special libraries in the Ministry for Scientific Research, formed the basis for the discussions. It was agreed that the order of priorities should be fixed also with a view to available funds. With regard to financing of research it was said that certain risks should be taken and that - like in enterprises - the government should also grant funds for experiments which had no inbuilt guarantee for a positive result.

The third day, Mr. Pál Bóday, Director of the Information Department of the Hungarian Centre for Library Science and Methodology, informed the meeting of research results of his studies of the situation of abstracting services in documentation.

The programme further included meetings of committees of the DGD, lectures on special subjects, visits to documentation centres, excursions, a "Weinprobe" and dance.

The texts of the lectures will appear in the first 1967 issue of the "Nachrichten für Dokumentation" or partly in earlier issues.

Annual conference of East German Library Association

The Deutscher Bibliotheksverband, founded in 1964 and at present numbering roughly 900 member libraries, held its second annual conference in Erfurt on 1-3 June. The theme of the Conference was: "The information activity of libraries in a scientific, technical and cultural revolution".

The introductory discussion paper, entitled "The contribution of libraries to the solution of information problems" was delivered by Dr. G. Pomassl, Chairman of the

Proceedings of 1965 FID Congress in Washington

A microfiche edition of the Proceedings of the 1965 FID Congress in Washington is now available from Spartan Books, 1250 Connecticut Avenue N.W., Washington D.C. 20036 at $ 10.—. The set consists of 5 microfiches containing the 264 pages of the volume.

The bound volume is expected to appear in October 1966. Copies of the printed proceedings will automatically be sent to every member of the Congress. The sales price of the printed volume is not yet known.

Automation in scientific and technical information

The Studieselskapet for Norsk Industri in Oslo (the Norwegian Industries Development Association) is preparing a Study Conference on Automation in Scientific and Technical Information which will take place in Oslo from 24 to 26 October 1966. Participation will be restricted to a small number of invited experts from the USSR and the Scandinavian countries.

The draft programme includes 1) Mechanical information retrieval, 2) Thesaurus development, and 3) Mechanical translation.

Colloquium of Association of International Libraries

The first Colloquium of the Association of International Libraries took place in Geneva from 12 to 14 May 1966 and in New York on 19 May. A report on the American meeting will follow. At the European meeting the following subjects were discussed:

- the elaboration of a general index to publications and documents of intergovernmental organizations other than the United Nations. It was felt that more uniformity in the presentation of existing indexes would be desirable, and that a general index, at least for certain subjects, would be helpful. It was resolved to present the problem to the meeting of the Association's General Assembly in The Hague on 12 September. Eventually a joint committee composed of members of IALL, IFLA, ICSSD and other organizations shall be asked to study the various aspects involved and to submit a report to the General Assembly in 1967.
- the elaboration of a guide for the acquisition of publications and documents of international organizations. This was considered a most useful project and it was decided that a report on its realization should be submitted to the General Assembly meeting in September.
- the professional training of the international librarian. It was agreed that, in the case of librarians of international organizations, no distinction could be made between library science and documentation, and that various classification systems - and not only the UDC - should be studied at training courses, in particular those leading to the use of electronic systems.

Sixth IASLIC Conference, Trivandrum. 27-31 December 1965

At the Sixth Conference of the Indian Association of Special Libraries and Information Centres recommendations were adopted which, among others, provided for:

- co-ordination by a Center for classification research, of researches conducted on the development of the Colon Classification; establishment of an Editorial Board for the Colon Classification; a survey of libra-

- ries and documentation centres using the CC; etc.;
  - a survey, by INSOC and IASLIC, of local documentation lists (including abstracting and indexing services), to co-ordinate and promote their improvement and use at local and national level;
  - increased responsibility and improvement of status and service conditions of special librarians.
- Papers of the Conference have been published as IASLIC Special Paper No. 8, parts I-IV.
(from IASLIC Bulletin, 1966 no. 1)

List of Committee programmes

A document listing the programmes of FID Committees and Working Groups is available free from the General Secretariat of FID. The information given is only a summary of the more important activities, projects and publications of these technical bodies of the Federation.

CLASSIFICATION

Proposals for revision of the UDC

The following proposals for revision of the Universal Decimal Classification (UDC) were issued on 31 August 1966 by the Classification Dept. of the FID Secretariat: PC 861 Corrections and amendments to earlier P-Notes (2 pages). Immediately valid.

P 862 Revision of 550.34 Seismology prepared by experts under FID/C 55 Earth sciences (6 pages). Comments before 31 December 1966.

Chinese classification system

In Library Journal of July 1966, an article appeared by G. Raymond Nunn, professor of History and Asian Studies at the University of Hawaii, which describes the organization of libraries and publishing in China. There are two national libraries, the National Library of Peking which is the major national library centre, and the Second All-China Central Library in Shanghai. The latter acts as a centre for university libraries, specialized institutes, technical research institutes, municipal industrial bureaux and companies.

At the Chinese People's University, a new classification system had been developed in 1953, of which a completed revised draft appeared in 1955, and a new edition in 1962. The system is applied in the Ch'üan kuo ts'ung shu mu (National Cumulative Catalogue of Books) and the Ch'üan kuo chuo yao pao k'an tsu tiao so yin (Index to Periodicals and Newspapers).

The classification system has a numerical notation with a base of 1 to 19, which is continued into the subdivisions.

Any person or organization interested in the programme of FID is cordially invited to join the Federation as an Affiliate.

The FID is principally a federation of National Members of which there are at present 42. Together with the Associate Members - international specialized organisations - they form the General Assembly of the Federation.

The participation of individual persons and organizations in the work of the Federation is, however, considered of the greatest importance, and it would be greatly appreciated if more Affiliates would take part in the national and international programmes of the Federation.

Affiliates pay a modest fee of f 25,— (individuals) or f 100,— (organizations) and receive free the monthly „FID News Bulletin“. They are entitled to a discount of 20% on the sales price of FID publications issued by the General Secretariat.

Applications should be addressed to the General Secretariat of FID, 7 Hofweg, The Hague (Netherlands) for approval by the Council.

The Activities of Publications Officers -- The Identification of Materials -- Records and Statistics -- Bibliography.

The problem of the acquisition of library materials abroad is closely related to questions of their identification upon receipt in libraries in Washington. The extent of the collections in many federal libraries, coupled with the constant influx of materials by purchase, gift and exchange, the multiplicity of the sources from which these are derived, and the responsibility of public institutions in the expenditure of their funds and the maintenance of their records, all combine to render necessary very elaborate techniques for dealing with library materials in all stages of their acquisition and in the accessioning process. These varied circumstances, however, which are responsible for the importance of the mere identification of shipments and a determination of their source, center in an exceedingly simple and obvious fact -- that there is no ready-made criterion, in the nature of the publications themselves, by which purchased, exchange and gift materials may be automatically distinguished. Material of any type, of individual or group authorship, may be received as a gift, and quite conceivably with no indication of the donor or his intention. The distinction between official publications on the one hand, the substance of which exchange agreements are fashioned, and unofficial materials on the other, is blurred in most countries outside the United States. Where purchased materials are concerned, unusual care must be exercised in their identification and recording as received, in order to justify payment from funds disbursed by federal agencies. All of these considerations are as true from the standpoint of periodical publications and continuing series as from that of monographs, and possess an equal validity for library materials other than books -- for maps, charts, city plans, prints, photographs, music, recordings.

From the point of view of the activities of publications officers, the problem of identifying materials is accompanied by a responsibility which is set for them by the circumstances of their geographical situation -- the availability to them of many types of information invaluable to catalogers, bibliographers and other reference workers, not to be ascertained outside a given geographic locale, or to be ascertained in printed sources only long after the event.
